On behalf of the City of Minneapolis, we would like to thank you for considering North Minneapolis as the new location for your business. Today is a great time to invest, and here's why:

- North Minneapolis is conveniently located near downtown, accessible from the entire metro and has great freeway access to Interstates 94 and 394. The area is also served by Olson Highway and Highway 100 with a connection to South Minneapolis via the Van White Memorial Boulevard, now under construction.
- The City's economic development team can help find the right location for your business through its site assistance support. Available real estate includes significant areas of industrially zoned land, well-served by freeways and freight rail.
- The City offers several business financing programs, ranging from $1,000 to $10 million and development grants to assist business owners in acquiring property, purchasing equipment and making building improvements.
- The City's employment and training program team can assist with workforce recruitment and training programs so your staff is knowledgeable and productive the minute they are hired.
- The Minneapolis-coordinated development review will help you successfully navigate the regulatory process, which includes Planning/Zoning, Building Plan Review, Permitting and Licensing, and other regulatory review agencies.

No one knows Minneapolis the way we do. The Department of Community Planning and Economic Development is ready to support you with all your business needs—from finance to site location, to customized training to fit your employment needs—and is here to help you every step of the way.

We look forward to welcoming your business to North Minneapolis.

Sincerely,

Betsy Hodges

The Minneapolis-St. Paul metro, population 2.8 million with a labor force of 1.6 million, is nationally recognized for its highly educated and experienced workforce. Almost 40% of area residents hold a college or advanced degree. The workers in North Minneapolis are highly motivated, productive employees and ready to work. North Minneapolis is especially proud of its ethnically diverse labor pool. Finally, Minneapolis is fortunate to have excellent workforce training/job placement partners in place, including the Minneapolis Urban League, Summit Academy OIC, Dunwoody Institute, Minneapolis Community & Technical College, and Emerge.

AIR SERVICE

Map: courtesy of Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport

The Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport consistently ranks among the world's best airports in terms of efficiency, amenities, and passenger satisfaction. MSP Airport served almost 33 million passengers in 2010, making it the 16th busiest airport in the US. That same year, it ranked 23rd nationally in cargo operations. It landed over 1.2 billion pounds of cargo, according to the FAA.

A dozen municipal or regional airports relieve congestion at the MSP Airport by serving private and corporate aircraft.

Minnesota's freight railroads form a critical part of the state's multimodal transportation system. The freight rail system is particularly critical in providing efficient connections to markets beyond the state's borders to locations throughout North America. Minnesota has 4,538 route miles of railroads serviced by 22 railroad companies.

Burlington Northern and Canadian Pacific serve the Minneapolis market. Rail is accessible in several parts of North Minneapolis.

HIGHWAY ACCESS

bustling, relaxing

Active and engaged business and residential community.

The North Minneapolis business community is actively engaged—with collaborations happening on a regular basis between business owners, residents, nonprofit organizations, and government. Additionally, a recent planning process on the North Side recommends new industrial development as a priority for the area.

Affordable place to live/growing green. North Minneapolis is an affordable, accessible place to live. The median home price in North Minneapolis is approximately $90,000. The area has an abundance of beautiful old homes and newly constructed green homes. In the past year the City of Minneapolis introduced Green Homes North, a five-year program to build 100 new homes on City-owned vacant lots in North Minneapolis. Green Homes North will incorporate: quality green design standards; green, energy efficiency and sustainability standards; job creation and workforce development; sourcing of local green products; and marketing to meet homebuyer expectations. In addition, the City of Minneapolis and Northside neighborhoods offer a variety of down payment and closing cost assistance programs for buying homes in North Minneapolis.

Neighborhood amenities. North Minneapolis has a number of significant neighborhood amenities.

- Beautiful, stately homes line the boulevards and are a source of pride for the community.

- Over 35 parks in the North Minneapolis area offer a variety of recreational opportunities.
- The Mississippi River, one of the world's great rivers, forms the eastern border of North Minneapolis. A continuous riverfront trail with park attractions, serving area businesses, employees, and residents, is planned for the river edge.
- The Grand Rounds is a National Scenic Byway that connects North Minneapolis with the rest of the city. The Grand Rounds includes 50 contiguous miles of hiking, biking, skiing and driving paths that travel around the city. Residents of North Minneapolis make great use of the bike/walk connections.
- The area is home to several notable arts venues and organizations. The renowned Capri Theater, where musician Prince got his start, was recently named the best venue for jazz in the metro. The Capri, Juxtaposition Arts, the Hollywood School of Dance, and the Lundstrum Center for the Performing Arts all provide first-class arts education. Art is integrated into building murals, park benches, sidewalk poetry and wall hangings.

We want you here!

The City of Minneapolis is committed to creating an environment that fosters the growth and development of businesses in North Minneapolis. There are numerous success stories and we'd like your business to be the next!

To that end we pledge:

Personal, one-on-one assistance from a business development consultant. Your consultant will be responsible for helping you find the perfect site, navigate the City regulatory processes, connect you to business finance experts, and direct you to workforce recruiting and training programs—all focused on saving you time and money. Even if your project needs to be reviewed by several departments, you will have one person to contact with questions or for help.

Connections to state and county programs as needed for contamination clean-up and financing for transportation improvements and building rehab.

Unison Comfort Technologies expands in North Minneapolis.

After analysis, Greenheck (Unison's parent company) decided to remain in Minnesota, expand its operations here, keep the jobs in North Minneapolis, and add new, high-paying jobs to the economy of the state.

The United States is the world's largest manufacturing economy, producing 21% of global manufactured products. About one in six private-sector jobs are manufacturing jobs. U.S. manufacturers are the most productive workers in the world—twice as productive as workers in the next 10 leading manufacturing economies.

...expand in North!

Industry is important to the City of Minneapolis—it provides jobs, a tax base, and economic vitality to the region. Industry is also very important to North Minneapolis. The industrial sector has a long-standing history of providing living-wage jobs there.

Manufacturers, such as Unison Comfort Technologies, are experiencing significant growth in North Minneapolis.

Greenheck, Unison's parent company, is known worldwide as the leading manufacturer of air-movement and control equipment. Its ventilation products are typically found in hospitals, office buildings, hotels, shopping malls, restaurants, schools, and other commercial buildings. The Greenheck Group is headquartered in Schofield, Wis. Unison Comfort Technologies, a critical operating division of Greenheck, consists of three business units: Innovent, Valent, and Precision Coils. Unison is headquartered in Minneapolis.

Recently, when the building Greenheck leased was offered for sale, the company had to decide whether to keep its operations in North Minneapolis or move these lines to Wisconsin and consolidate operations. After analysis, Greenheck decided to remain in Minnesota, expand its operations here, keep the jobs in North Minneapolis, and add new, high-paying jobs to the economy of the state.

A world-class leader

Coloplast invests in North Minneapolis.

“Deciding to move our North American headquarters to Minneapolis was largely based on the fact that the Twin Cities has a high concentration of medical device companies and is home to a world class medical community. Being here gives us access to a highly skilled talent pool for workforce recruitment, and in addition, Minneapolis is an exceedingly livable city with a thriving cultural life, excellent for outdoor activities, as well as having a great education system.”

— Lars Rasmussen, CEO Coloplast

Minneapolis is a leader in medical research and health care delivery. Top-ranked physicians, researchers, and health and medical institutions provide world-class health care and make the discoveries that lead to the innovations of tomorrow. Minneapolis is home to 19 health and medical institutions, and 61 research and clinical labs with 2,300 physicians, 12,000 staff employees and over 250 researchers.

...locally invested.

Companies such as Coloplast have made significant investment in the North Minneapolis community.

Denmark-based Coloplast—a global leader in the development of intimate health care products and services—selected North Minneapolis as the new home for its North American headquarters. The $35 million campus, located on a 5.4 acre site on the bank of the Mississippi River, is LEED-certified (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) and includes one of the company's three global Innovation Centers. The 178,000-square-foot facility houses approximately 300 employees in sales, marketing, and research and development. The company relocated its North American headquarters operations from Atlanta and Santa Barbara to Minneapolis.

Coloplast added new jobs to North Minneapolis, provided mentoring and internship opportunities for local high-school and college students, and served as a catalyst for revitalization and investment on the Upper River.

Courted by other cities

Impact Proven Solutions grows in North Minneapolis.

Minneapolis has one of the most vibrant business climates in the country. The city's diverse economic base is built on companies—large and small, young and established, traditional and cutting edge—in areas of finance, merchandising, healthcare, education, manufacturing, and distribution services. With that concentration of businesses comes the need for professional and business services.

Impact's business was booming. The company had a need to expand its facilities and hire more workers. After a thoughtful decision-making process, Impact Proven Solutions turned down incentives to move out of the metro and remained committed to North Minneapolis.

Impact Proven Solutions is just one of many examples of business and professional services that are located in North Minneapolis.

Impact's business was booming. The company had a need to expand its facilities and hire more workers. After a thoughtful decision-making process, the company turned down incentives to move out of the metro and remained committed to North Minneapolis. The Camden neighborhood business completed a $7 million expansion and doubled its workforce. The 25-year-old direct-mail and promotion-fulfillment company consolidated its operations and decided to remain in North Minneapolis, citing its proximity to free-ways, stable neighborhoods, and access to good workers.

25 years of success

American Chemical is committed to North Minneapolis.

In the United States, small businesses employ over half of the country's workforce. Small businesses in America have been the stabilizing force in the economy. Entrepreneurs are the backbone of creativity and production. Small businesses are what stimulates economic growth. With over 60% of all private sector, non-farm jobs coming from small business, it is a proven fact that small businesses are critical to the United States economy.

The development of small business in North Minneapolis can be a stabilizing factor. American Chemical is just one of many examples of a small industrial business that is thriving in North Minneapolis.

American Chemical is an adhesive manufacturer and distributor that was founded by Dennis Werneke twenty-five years ago. Over the years, Dennis has turned the company into a thriving business and he credits that success to the company's ability to listen to customers and problem-solve through challenges. Like many entrepreneurs, Werneke started his business out of his home. In 2001, American Chemical made North Minneapolis home. Currently, American Chemical has 10 employees.

Since relocating American Chemical to the North Side, Werneke has become active in the North Minneapolis business community and Hawthorne Neighborhood. Giving back to the community is a priority for American Chemical, which gives a percentage of its profits, time, and talent back to the community. For the past seven years, Werneke has hired and trained youth from the community as part of the City's STEP-UP Achieve Program. STEP-UP Achieve trains and provides youth from Minneapolis paid summer jobs with public agencies, local companies, and nonprofits.

In addition, Werneke also created the North Minneapolis Business Center, a business incubator space located at 2201 2nd Avenue North. Werneke leases out approximately 30–40 percent of the space to start-up companies with office space and/or warehouse needs.

new developments

PAI made a strong commitment to North Minneapolis. The company paid $2.1 million for the property, invested $4.5 million in renovations, and has invested $3 million in new equipment for a $10 million total investment to relocate to this 130,000-square-foot site. PAI has approximately 130 employees with 45 located in Minneapolis, all making above living wage. The company's number-one priority in relocating from the warehouse district was to stay in Minneapolis in the interest of workforce proximity.

Natural gas, electricity, and water service rates are significantly lower in the Minneapolis-Saint Paul region than either coast. Utility rates are also very competitive with most Midwest states. In addition, Minnesota exempts energy used in the manufacturing process from sales tax. The exemption includes natural gas, electricity, and other utilities, providing bottom-line savings to heavy energy users.

Energy production

Xcel Energy, the nation's fourth largest combination electricity and natural gas utility, is headquartered in Minneapolis and provides reliable grid-sourced power for commercial and industrial use throughout the city. With two base-load nuclear power plants located outside the metro area and a clean-energy portfolio that includes wind turbines and hydro power, nearly half the electricity delivered by Xcel Energy to Minneapolis (46 percent) is produced with zero air emissions and is carbon free. Taken as a whole, the state produces about two-thirds of its electric power from coal-burning plants, one-quarter from the two nuclear power plants, and a substantial share from wind turbines, giving the state a rank of fourth in the nation for production of wind-generated electricity. Minnesota generates electricity from other renewable sources as well—including conventional hydroelectric dams, municipal solid-waste and landfill gas, and wood waste. The state is also a leading producer of ethanol and the Twin Cities region hosts two petroleum refineries.

Low-cost electricity

The Twin Cities has a well-earned reputation for highly reliable, low-cost electricity—especially compared to other regions of the country.

Competitive natural gas

Minnesota's natural gas prices are lower than most states, giving the Minneapolis-area companies that rely on natural gas a major cost advantage. CenterPoint Energy is the largest natural gas distribution company in Minnesota.

Water services

Minneapolis has some of the highest quality, most plentiful tap water in the country. The City's state-of-the-art ultrafiltration plant is one of the few such facilities in the nation.

Minnesota tax rates are 15th lowest in the US.

Minnesota business taxes are the 15th lowest in the nation, according to a study by Ernst & Young and the Council on State Taxation.

Corporate income tax

Minnesota's corporate tax rate is a flat 9.8% on all corporate income. As one of the few states without a "throwback rule," Minnesota reduces net taxable income for businesses. The state's generous carry forward period also helps businesses reduce tax liabilities.

Minnesota sales & use tax

Minnesota charges a 6.875% general sales tax on one of the narrowest tax bases in the country. Minnesota exempts capital machinery and equipment used in manufacturing from sales tax. It also provides exemptions for fuel and electricity used in industrial production, effectively lowering the net sales tax for many businesses. In addition, Minnesota exempts most services, including installation and repair, from sales and use tax. Large data center operations are exempt from sales tax on equipment, software, and electricity. There is no sales tax on clothing, pharmaceuticals, or food used for home consumption.

Sources: State Tax Handbook, CCH, 2010; Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development.

Commercial and industrial property tax

Minnesota exempts personal property like machinery and inventory from the property tax—lowering the effective tax rate for real and personal property. Businesses with high equipment and inventory values, relative to their real estate value, pay a lower effective tax rate in Minnesota than other states.

Workers' compensation insurance

Minnesota's workers' compensation costs are 30% below the median, according to a 15-state comparison by the Workers Compensation Research Institutes in 2010. Employers generally arrange coverage with private insurers at a market rate. Minnesota's insurance industry is very competitive, allowing for substantially reduced market-rate premiums.

"After my success with American Chemical, Inc., a 25 year old industrial adhesives company that employs 12, I wanted to help other entrepreneurs so I started the North Minneapolis Business Center. Through this business incubator, I have helped spawn a number of new start-up businesses including Atomic Recycling, Boom Island Brewing, and Minnesota African Women's Association, to name a few. Proximity to I-94, affordable real estate, and being located in the heart of the Twin Cities labor force all add up for companies looking for a competitive advantage."

— Dennis Werneke, owner
American Chemical, Inc.
